The pioneering psychedelic research of Stanislav Grof, MD, is informing a whole new generation of scientists, who are again examining the enhanced wellness, healing, creativity, and spirituality inherent in the psychedelic experience. In this residential retreat in the desert of Joshua Tree, CA, we will dive deep into the exciting and often challenging terrain of the current 'Psychedelic Renaissance'. Topics will include time-honored, cross-cultural use, visionary technological/artistic contributions, current government-supported research, and 'skillful means' for supporting someone in crisis. There will be opportunity for spirited discussion of the transformative power of these experiences, as well as the personal and cultural context necessary for their understanding and integration.

The topic of psychedelic substances at this retreat is entirely theoretical. However, this is an excellent opportunity to experience non-ordinary states through Holotropic Breathwork. Developed by Stanislav and Christina Grof, Holotropic Breathwork is in direct lineage with this valuable psychedelic research. So whether you have personal experience with shamanic ceremony or other deep practices, or are just curious, you will have the opportunity to experience the transformative potential of non-ordinary states in a safe and supportive setting. We hope you can join us!
